Issue Is Meat Or Stability

OPA Administrator Tells Meat-Hungry Nation; Defends His Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)— Price administrator Paul Porter told the meat-hungry nation today the issue is steak or stabilization.

Defending his price ceilings, he served new notice that "We shall maintain legal controls in the areas where shortages would produce runaway prices so long as we have the legal power to do so."

Porter also said, however, that he is "as upset as anyone" by the meat shortage "and I can assure you we are working on it."

At the White House, too, Charles G. Ross, the President's press secretary, told reporters the whole matter was discussed at a cabinet meeting yesterday but "all I can say is that no angle has been overlooked."

Neither Porter nor Ross mentioned any steps that might be taken.

Dangerous Psychology

Porter, in his weekly broadcast, reported in connection with the meat shortage "a dangerous public psychology that could result in nullifying all the gains that have been made" in the battle against inflation.

He said he sees signs of such reaction among the people and that "There has been no crisis in the past five years of our fight for stabilization in which the danger of losing the battle against inflation was more serious."

Calling attention to "favorable economic factors" such as mounting production and prospects of dropping unit costs, Porter said that he never had ben more confident since the new OPA law was passed that the stabilization fight can be won.

Impatience Understandable

He described impatience with price controls as "understandable," but called on the people not to let "petty irritations or group selfishness" undermine policies which he said are leading toward a record high living standard.

Ross indicated that a telegram from Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York urging a meat shortage investigation by the federal bureau of Investigation would be referred in the usual way to the justice department. The telegram to the President, suggesting the FBI inquiry along with other measures, was received yesterday.

Along the same line Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) asked the senate small business committee to investigate whether "a conspiracy exists on the part of big business" to keep meat from small independent stores.

The meeting is in charge of the meetings committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which John W. Asher, is chairman. Other members of the committee are: Dr. O. L. Durnell, James Denny, Merwyn Kelsey, Dr. Floyd Lively, Victor Scott, Ralph Benningfield, Harry Trotman, Harry Naugel.

Snowing in Western States

DENVER, Oct. 5—(AP)—Rain which started falling today changed to snow over much of Wyoming today and the weather bureau predicted northern Colorado areas would get some of the snow tonight.

Snow was general over southern Montana and the moisture spread eastward over Kansas, most of Nebraska and the Dakotas.

Clearing weather generally was forecast for the region Sunday with local frosts accompanying a drop in temperature.

Wyoming's first reported blizzard of 1946 swept Kemmerer Wyo., streets tonight after a day when rain, then a light fall of snow decked streets.

Travelers, caught in the west's early-season preview of winter in the Rockies, jammed tourist cabins and hotels.

Late tonight there were two inches of snow on the ground and the fall was continuing.

Delegates Cry 'Hurrah' as Session Ends

Preliminary Draft Of Five Peace Treaties Completed

By Louis Nevin

PARIS, Oct. 5—(AP)—Fourteen tired, disheveled and unshaven delegates cried "hurrah!" today as the Balkan Economic Commission ended a 28-hour session which completed the preliminary drafting of the five peace treaties with the former satellites of Nazi Germany.

When Commission Chairman Josef Korbel banged his gavel in adjournment it meant that the commission had completed its share of the writing of a reparations bill which if approved will cost Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland $1,350,000,000 for helping Adolf Hitler set the world on fire.

Reparations claims against Italy alone at one time totaled $26,000,000,000.

Monday morning the delegates of the 21 nations to the European Peace Conference will meet in plenary session to begin the final stage of treaty writing that is scheduled to end on Oct. 15. Then will turn their treaty recommendations over the big four Foreign Ministers, will have the final say.

Plenary Session Today

A special plenary session will be held tomorrow to consider rules limiting debate and the schedule laid down by the Foreign Ministers Council.

Official French sources said it would be necessary to hold continuous 24-hour sessions in order to adhere to the schedule and meet the Oct. 15 deadline.

Soviet sources indicated they would bring up tomorrow the matter of non-belligerent states voting on final ballots foreshadowing a dispute on procedure even before the session gets down to the matter of treaties.

The Italian political commission, scene of frequent battles between the Slav bloc and the western powers, concluded its work on a note of harmony.

Praise From Byrnes

Senator Tom Conally (D-Tex), a U. S. delegate and an adviser to Secretary of State Byrnes, praised the work of the commission and urged the delegates to remember that their task was to create and preserve world peace.

"We must not have another war!" Connally declared. "We cannot have another war! I cannot believe that mankind would be so insane as to lead the world into another war. That is what we always must have before us."

This is how the reparations bill finally stacked up:

Italy—$325,000,000 to Russia, Yugoslavia, Greece and Ethiopia.

Romania—$300,000,000 to Russia, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Bulgaria—$125,000,000 to Greece and Yugoslavia.

Hungary—$300,000,000 to Russia, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Finland—$300,000,000 to Russia.

A total of $800,000,000 goes to the Soviet Union, $60,000,000 to Czechoslovakia, $25,000,000 to Ethiopia, $240,000,000 to Yugoslavia and $100,000,000 to Greece. In addition the Foreign Ministers' Council is to divide the $125,000,000 to be paid by Bulgaria between Yugoslavia and Greece.

McNeal was driving west toward town and coming off of Crescent Drive onto Broadway, when the car struck some gravel on the right side of the road on the curve. The car swerved to the left side of the highway and back. McNeal seeing an approach-car swerved further to the left to avoid striking it and crashed into a ditch.

The car turned on its side catching his arm between the dirt and car, rolled over on the top, spun around and came back on its wheels headed back east.

Preacher of Ozarks Coming

The spirit of good inter-club relations will be manifest Tuesday at the noonday luncheon of the Optmist club when it will be host to the Sedalia Kiwanis club at Hotel Bothwell.

According to J. Lee Brandt, chairman of the Optimist club's committee on inter-club relatives, this is the beginning of a movement on the part of the club to promote best possible working relations between the civic and service clubs of the city.

The high light of the meeting will be a talk by the Rev. Guy Howard, "The Walkin' Preacher of the Ozarks." His subject is "The People of the Ozarks," and in this he is most interested. He is widely known as a speaker and is the author of a book.

Services Over Mass Grave

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. Oct. 5—(AP)—The charred remnants of an American overseas airliner and the 39 persons who died Thursday when it crashed against the side of a Newfoundland mountain were buried tonight under an avalanche of rock touched off by 300 pounds of dynamite.

Ground crews blasted the stone base of a 1,200-foot peak, obliterating the ugly scar burned there by the exploding plane and the fire that followed.

A plane will circle the scene tomorrow morning while a Protestant minister, a Catholic priest and a rabbi conduct funeral services from the air.

Little remained of the giant, four-engine transport after it rammed the rock wall, exploded and burned in a fire fed by 900 gallons of high octane gasoline.

Two bodies were thrown clear of the inferno. The others were cremated.

Communistic Doctrines Are Charged

In Resolution GOP Women Cheered Forgot To Pass

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 5—(AP)—Read and applauded but never adopted by the Missouri Federation of Republican Women's Clubs today was a resolution charging some University of Missouri instructors are teaching their students Communistic doctrines.

Failure to adopt the resolution was blamed by its author, Mrs. Pearl Gehrig of Salisbury, Mo., on another resolution which followed immediately.

She told a reporter the ensuing business made her forget to ask a vote on adoption of the resolution against the unidentified professors.

"We got so excited," she said, "that we forgot all about it."

As mothers of university students, her resolutions said, members of the clubs should "deplore" the fact that professors "have taken advantage of their positions to teach Communistic doctrines and have actively participated in the organization of local P.A.C. (Political Action Committee) organizations under the guise of the Columbia Voters League."

On To Next Resolution

She urged that the board of curators put a stop to such teachings. Otherwise, the legislature should be asked to cut the university's appropriation to a point where the unnamed professors would have to be dropped from the faculty.

As Mrs. Gehrig, chairman of the resolutions committee, finished reading the resolution delegates to the annual convention applauded and Mrs. Gehrig went on to read another resolution.

It would have made the housewife's apron the symbol of the Republican party's effort to "clean up" Missouri's congressional delegation.

Officers Installed

Although brightly colored aprons were presented to each of the 13 congressional district clubs and to wives of the Republican congressional canadidates, no action was taken on that resolution, either.

These new federation officers, elected last June, were installed at the close of the convention today:

Mrs. Helen Crome of Clinton, succeeding Mrs. George Dietz of St. Louis as president; Mrs. John Brenner of Parkville, first vice president; Mrs. Roy Vitt of Washington, Mo., second vice president; Mrs. William D. Cosner of Trenton, secretary; Mrs. Kitty Barnes of Kansas City, treasurer, and Mrs. Harry Becke of St. Louis county, auditor.

Group to Select Nominating Committee

The Chamber of Commerce executive committee will meet in the Chamber of Commerce offices at 7:30 p. m. Monday night to complete the suggested program of activities for the next fiscal year to be presented to the board of directors when they meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Interlude. This being the last regular board meeting of the fiscal year, which ends November 1st, a nominating committee will be selected.

Wire Truman, Ask Removal OPA Controls

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 5—(AP)—Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins (R-Ohio), chairman of a Republican congressional food committee, released text of a telegram he sent President Truman today asking removal of OPA controls to "set the meat industry free the American people again."

Jenkins stated in his wire that testimony of experts given the committee in hearings at Sioux City Iowa, Kansas City, Mo., and Tulsa indicated "the only solution to the meat shortage is immediate and permanent elimination of all OPA controls and price regulations over the livestock and meat industry."

"Congress was not in session when meat was placed back under price control," the congressman wrote the President.

Truman Has Authority

"It will not be in session until January 3, 1947. In the meantime, you, as President, are the only one with authority to bring an end to this intolerable situation."

The Republicans concluded a tour of the midwestern "breadbasket" states yesterday and Jenkins said a committee report would be released next week for us by party congressmen in determining remedial legislation if the President takes no action

Airport Near Rome Hears Radio Of Dreamboat on Tour

CAIRO, Sunday, Oct. 6—(AP)—The U. S. Army's Pucusan Dreamboat radioed at 3:20 a. m., Greenwich mean time, today (10:20 p. m. EST, Saturday) that it had winged its way over Crete on the last lap of it's Honolulu-to-Cairo flight, the Army's Air Transport Command said.

The B-29 had messaged when it was leaving Italy behind that it was nosing into a thunderstorm, with icing conditions in the clouds.

ROME, Sunday, Oct. 6—(AP)—The Ciampino airport near Rome reported at 11:15 p. m., Greenwich Mean Time (6:15 EST) last night that it could hear the radio of the Pacusan Dreamboat, heading southeast on the last lap of its Honolulu-to-Cairo non-stop flight, but not clearly enough to decipher its message.

LONDON, Oct. 5—(AP)—The Pacusan Dreamboat, beating a new top-of-the-world trail from Honolulu to Cairo, passed about 50 miles east of Paris at 10:35 p. m., Greenwich Mean Time (5:35 p. m. EST) tonight, an army official at Paris' Orly Field reported.

The U. S. army plane reported that it was flying at 16,000 feet, but did not furnish ground watchers an exact geographical "fix." At 10:55 p. m., GMT, the officer said, the Dreamboat was believed to have reached a spot southeast of Lyon.

The Orly field control tower advised the B-29 that a low pressure area was building up in the Ardiatic sea and advised the pilot to steer a course just west of Geneva, Switzerland, in crossing the Alps.

The Dreamboat reported to Orly field that it had set an estimated time of arrival over Foggia airport in southeastern Italy at 12:30 a. m., GMT, Sunday (7:30 p. m. EST, Saturday.)

The plane, despite uncharged weather in the extreme north above the Hudson Bay, had averaged around 250 miles an hour since its takeoff from among the Palms of Hawaii.

Briggs Holds Membership In REA Co-Op

He States In Reply To Charges By Grover Dalton

KENNETT, Mo., Oct. 5—(AP)—Senator Frank P. Briggs of Macon replied tonight to charges by Grover W. Dalton of Poplar Bluff that he is unfriendly to the Rural Electrification Administration.

Briggs said he holds memberships in two REA cooperatives in Macon county and declared that throughout his legislative career he has been a friend of the REA.

If the "Democratic Administration had no other accomplishments to its credit than making possible electric service to the thousands of farm homes x x x I believe the farmers of Missouri would be justified in continuing to vote the Democratic ticket," Briggs said in an address prepared for delivery here.

Dalton, chairman of the State Republican committee, last week charged that Briggs has been attempting to further his campaign for return to the U. S. Senate by sending postcards to farmers asserting his friendship to the REA and to Rural cooperatives.

Dalton declared Briggs, as a state senator, opposed a Rural cooperative bill in 1939 and in 1933 was chairman of a committee which "smothered" a bill to enable smaller Missouri cities to operate municipal power plants.

Worked For Bill

In his reply tonight, Briggs said of the assertion against his 1939 senatorial record:

"It would appear to be strange that in Grocer Dalton's close scrutiny of the record, he overlooked the fact I voted for the bill, which he states I attempted to kill.

"As to Mr. Dalton's charge that I was opposed to municipal ownership, I would call attention to the fact that I was elected mayor of Macon in 1930 when municipal ownership of the city light plant was one of the main issues x x x. I appointed the first board of public works (to operate the plant) x x x and two of the original four members are still serving."

He said of the 1933 bill which Dalton declared Briggs' committee smothered:

"If the bill to which Mr. Dalton referred was such an excellent piece of legislation, it is peculiar that it has not been presented and passed during the 13 years that have intervened."

'Dirty Trick' On Mosquito

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—The army tonight announced perfection of a synthetic feminine wolf-call which plays havoc with the love-life of mosquitoes.

The male mosquito which hears it apparently gets the impression that some girl mosquito is giving him the big-eye. But lured to the source, he finds himself confronting a cold, impersonal tuning fork.

This dirty trick was worked out by the army quartermaster corps in extensive research into means of protecting soldiers against insect-borne diseases.

The quartermaster found that the flutter of female mosquitoes' wings produces a hum which does things to a male of the same species.

Negotiations For Strike Recessed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—Negotiations for at least a partial settlement of the crippling maritime strike recessed tonight with no agreement.

Representatives of striking unions and ship operators were asked to come back to the labor department Monday to try again with government conciliators to reach an understanding.

Prospects of an early settlement appeared dim.

The disputants had been working all afternon on a government proposal designed to settle the strike on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts even though private Pacific operations remained tied up.

Hull Improved, Still Serious

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—Cordell Hull's condition continued to improve today, the navy medical center reported, but it still regarded as serious.

The 75-year-old former secretary of state had been reported in grave condition earlier in the week, after suffering a stroke at the Bethesda, Md., hospital.

Slight improvement of Hull's condition was noted by the hospital in its early bulletins today. At 4 p. m. E.S.T. the hospital reported:

"Mr. Hull has continued to show some improvement during the day. However his condition is still regarded as serious."

Two Acquitted Men Spirited From Jail

By Tom Reedy

NUERNBERG, Oct. 4—(AP)—Two of the three acquitted top Nazi leaders were spirited out of jail and given final freedom today by United States military authorities amid a growing uproar among Germans that the three be tried in German courts for crimes against their own people.

Hjalmar Schacht, Hitler's banker, and Hans Fritzsche, propagandist, were released from prison and installed in downtown apartments. Franz Von Papen, the diplomat, remained in jail waiting formal word on whether he could enter the British zone. A British spokesman in the zone said entry was barred to all three.

The U. S. army made it clear that Schacht and Fritzsche were free to come and go as they please "pending trial" by German de-Nazification courts, but reports from all over Germany told of demands that all three be brought before German tribunals on charges of crimes against their own people.

Jam Variety Theater

In Berlin 5,000 persons, jamming a Variety theater in the Soviet sector of the city, gave thunderous approval to a resolution that not only the three acquitted Nazis, but also the seven who received prison sentences, be delivered "to a German court here immediately."

"Give us Von Papen to try in the shattered Reichschancellery, Schacht in the battered Reichsbank and Fritzsche under the radio tower!" shouted one speaker.

In Bremen highest German political official of the British and American zones adopted unanimously a formal resolution that the three Nazi acquitted by the international military tribunal Tuesday be tried by a German court on a charge of "crimes against the German people."

Strike Goes on In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5—(AP)—Downtown department stores today planned to reopen Monday in the first concerted move to resume normal operations despite the crippling 12-day power strike.

The Retail Merchants Association said the stores are installing emergency generators to permit them to operate and end the strike made layoffs of more than 10,000 employes.

As the stores made plans to counteract effects of the power walkout, a public rally was scheduled for tomorrow to protest the strike of 3,500 members of the Duquesne Light Co. Independent union.

Federal conciliation efforts still failed today to bring the union and the company together. The company has insisted on arbitration to settle the wage dispute. This, the union flatly refuses.

Meanwhile ,the strike dragged on in the 817-square mile area served by Duquesne Light. In most sections, residents had electricity in their homes, but streets were pitch black and nocturnal travelers did well to carry flashlights.

Streetcars and busses—principal means of transportation for some 1,000,000 riders—were still tied up by refusal of motormen and drivers to cross picket lines set up by the power strikers.

Openly Angry At Truman

Attlee Expresses Further Resentment Over His Refusal To Delay Statement

By Ed Creagh

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Arabs and British officials openly nursed their anger at President Truman today, but dissent within Britain over the government's Palestine policy entered the picture.

The foreign office, confirming previous reports, said Prime Minister Attlee had sent a personal note to President Truman and went even farther than yesterday in expressing resentment over the President's refusal to delay publication of his statement advocating the immediate admission of a substantial number of Jewish immigrants into the Holy Land.

Winston Churchill, former prime minister, openly criticised the government's Palestine policy in a speech to a conservative party convention at Blackpool, declaring it was "vacillating" and an abandonment of "lavish promises" made to the Jews by the labor party before it took office.

Hang On To Mandate

He added that the government was hanging on to a mandate "in which they have no vital interest." Foreign office officials have said emphatically that Britain has no intention of giving up her mandate and may ask the United Nations to confirm it.

A source close to Attlee said dissension over Palestine also was one of several matters on which former minister of state Philip Noel-Baker had disagreed with the government. Noel-Baker was shifted to air secretary in a series of cabinet and ministerial changes announced last night.

The foreign office spokesman left the impression that the Attlee not to President Truman was couched in strong language.

"Playing Politics"

An Arab spokesman accused the President of playing politics. Dr. M. Fadhel Jamali, Iraq foreign minister and leader of the Iraq delegation to the London conference on Palestine, in a formal statement declared that "we regret that the President's connection with Zionist sources in America is never counterbalanced by any standing connections with, or study of, the Arab point of view. We also know, to our regret, that elections in America, which should be purely internal matters, do take on a bargaining nature for Zionist votes and Zionist influence in the U. S."

A Daily Mail dispatch from Washington said the President's statement was made "at the express desire of Mr. Robert Hannegan," Democratic national chairman.

Leading Jews maintained a strict sabbath silence. Most Jews in Palestine were still unaware of the President's statement or its repercussions except for rumors. There had been no Jewish newspapers published in Palestine since Friday afternoon because of the Yom Kippur holiday.

United States Supreme Court Opens Term

Tidelands Oil Dispute One of Important Cases

By Paul M. Yost

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 —(AP)— The Supreme Court, restored to full strength, opens a new term Monday which will decide the tidelands oil dispute and many other vital questions.

Twenty-one cases, an unprecedented total, remain from last term. On many the court split 4 to 4 while Justice Jackson was in Nuernberg to prosecute the Nazi war criminals. Others were postponed after Chief Justice Stone's death April 22 reduced the bench to seven justices. Now they will be reargued starting October 14 for the benefit of Jackson and the new chief justice, Fred M. Vinson.

Two of these cases have been stalled since 1944. They involve the Public Utilities Holding Company Act.

Among 54 cases filed last June which the court has agreed to consider, the tidelands oil controversy is among those commanding the widest interest. It involves the question whether the federal government or the states own certain off-shore lands which contain oil and other minerals.

Truman Vetoes Bill

Congress last session passed a bill yielding to the states any title the federal government might have but President Truman vetoed it. He declared the question should be decided by the court, not by Congress.

The issue figured in the Senate Naval committee hearings on Edwin W. Pauley's nomination for undersecretary of the navy. Harold L. Ickes, then secretary of the interior, testified that Pauley held out the prospect of Democratic campaign contributions from fellow California oilmen if the government's suit to establish title to the oil lands were dropped. Pauley denied it.

Other important cases include the following:

A challenge by Oklahoma that the Hatch Act is unconstitutional insofar as it "attempts to regulate the internal affairs of a state."

An attack by an aircraft parts manufacturer on the constitutionality of the Renegotiation Act. The act gives the government authority to recover excessive profits from war contractors.

A suit involving the right of a board of education to use funds raised by taxation to pay for the transportation of pupils to Roman Catholic parochial schools.

Georgia Case On Docket

One of the most important cases pending is Georgia's complaint that railroads have conspired to fix freight rates discriminatory against the south. This may reach the decision stage late in the term.

A special master, Lloyd K. Garrison, is expected to make his report to the court early in 1947. Each side then will be given an opportunity to file exceptions to the report and argue their points.

The court also faces about 500 petitions filed during the summer asking the tribunal to review decisions of lower courts.

Among them is one asking the Supreme Court to rule on validity of Georgia's unit voting system.

The court was asked to decide the propriety of ICC orders increasing railroad freight rates 10 per cent in the north and east and reducing them 10 per cent in the south and west.

The controversy between John L. Lewis and the mine operators over unization of foremen may reach the court before it adjourns.

The session tomorrow will see only brief opening formalities.

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

Mrs. R. W. Elder, milliner, Saturday sent an errand boy to the Missouri Pacific station with a $20 hat that had been purchased by a Tipton woman. It was to be delivered to the matron of the ladies' waiting room but the boy approaching a woman resembling the matron presented the hat to her and it was accepted. Later it was revealed a mistake had been made and the police were requested to try and locate the woman and retrieve the hat.

During the Missouri State Fair seventeen cases of sickness were attended to at the emergency hospital on the fair grounds.

Earl Doolittle, former Sedalian, holding a good position with the New York Life Insurance Co., at Wichita, Kas., is making a brief visit with relatives and friends here.

About 25 men are now engaged in the improvements at the Sedalia gas plant and Saturday Eugene O'Brien with a force of men began excavating at the plant for a street main governor.

Frank Rau, local grower of vegetables, took $106 in premiums on his home-grown products at the Missouri State Fair capturing 25 first premiums, thirty second premiums and the sweepstakes on twenty-four varieties of potatoes.

Proclamation

Whereas, Victory in World War II cost us more than 2,000,000 casualties, and,

Whereas, There are millions of handicapped persons in the United States, many of whom by their efforts were of great aid in manufacturing munitions or providing essential service for the war effort, and,

Whereas, All of these persons, including disabled Veterans of World War I and II deserve self-supporting, self-respecting jobs in which they can make useful contributions to our community, state and nation;

Now, Therefore, I, Julian H. Bagby, Mayor of Sedalia, do set aside the week of October 6th to October 12th, as Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, and I call upon all local officials, all local employers, all local service organizations and all citizens to assist in every way possible, to the end that it shall be brought to the attention of all members of our community that disabled veterans and other handicapped civilians are fully capable and are performing efficiently, safely and reliably in thousands of different occupations.

And I Further Urge All Employers to place all their job orders with the United States Employment Service so that disabled veterans and other handicapped workers may be given an opportunity to prove their value in productive and self-respecting jobs.

I am confident that this community will exhibit the same spirit of cooperation in helping meet this great human problem that it always has shown when called upon to assume responsibilities in the past.

Halt Sale of Meal Tickets

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 5—(AP)—Sale of meal tickets at the University of Missouri's new cafeteria was halted today because of lack of employes—adding to the difficulty of feeding the student body of more than 10,000, largest in the school's history.

Miss Marita Monroe, supervisor of dining halls, said the cafeteria has a capacity of 2,000, but that only 1,295 meal tickets have been issued, and some of them may have to be canceled if more help is not obtained.

Classes are being conducted during the noon hour, but even that has brought little relief to the restaurants which were overburdened last spring with about half the present enrollment.

Government Tax Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The federal government took in more in taxes during the first three months of this fiscal year than in any 12 peacetime months in history.

Federal spending during those three months, ended Sept. 30, also topped that of any whole fiscal year of peace except 1941, when billions were lead out for defense.

Receipts for the July-through-September period were $9,450,000,000, which would be an annual rate of $37,800,000,000. That would be $1,800,000,000 below the budget estimate for the year ending next June 30 but officials hope heavy tax receipts next spring will close the gap.

Gifford Pinchot Dies Friday Night

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania and conservationist, who spent a lifetime pleading for intelligent use of the nation's forests, streams and minerals, died here last night at the age of 81.

The elderly Pinchot, in ill health for some time and hospitalized for the past week, died at 10:30 p. m. (EST) at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

Pinchot was a friend and admirer of Theodore Roosevelt. He helped Roosevelt found the Progressive or "Bull Moose" party, which brought a cleavage between two factions of the Republican party.

'Real' Wages Take a Drop

*Does not include the 5 points approved by Executive Order in Fall of 1945

Charts above show that, despite fatter pay envelopes, taxes and the cost of living have brought "real" wages down to the 1942 level. Whereas weekly wages on the payroll average about $42.50, that sum's "real" value is only a little better than $30 per week.

Kansans To Post Bond in Liquor Cases

Trials Will Be Held The Latter Part of November

TOPEKA, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Federal court officials today were wading through a pile of 88 indictments returned yesterday by a federal grand jury and preparing warrants involving the mayor and police chief of Leavenworth, Kas., indicted for alleged violations of federal liquor laws.

Attorneys for the Leavenworth city officials said they would post bonds in Kansas City, Kas., Tuesday but the U. S. Marshal's office reported that capias warrants and bonding notices have not as yet been received from the clerk of the district court, but probably would arrive Monday.

Cases Up In November

Officials of the U. S. district attorney's office said the Leavenworth cases probably would be heard in the Topeka division of the federal district court around Nov. 25.

The indictment charged that Mayor Kirmayer and city Chief of Police Roy W. Murray allegedly had entered a conspiracy with others in Leavenworth to violate federal liquor laws by transporting liquor into a dry state and that Leavenworth police officers had been ordered not to raid certain local liquor establishments.

Kirmayer, in a formal statement, asked for an opportunity to "show what is really behind this move," and said he was a victim of much "underground prejudice." He added that he had made many enemies by not being a "rubber stamp mayor" and his enemies "would find great satisfaction in disgracing me."

Murray, who was recommended by Kirmayer as chief of police, declined comment.

Woodring For Appeal

Harry H. Woodring, Democratic candidate for governor who has taken a strong stand for repeal of the state's prohibitory liquor laws, today stated that Andrew Currie, who also was indicted in the Leavenworth liquor case, "has been leading the fight against me" in Leavenworth county.

Woodring said, "I am going to Leavenworth before this campaign is ended. I have been told that although Leavenworth is the wettest county in the state, that I am going to have a hard time carrying it even though I am for outright repeal.

"I believe the great majority of the people of Leavenworth county want law enforcement," Woodring stated.

Three Charged With Burglary And Larceny

Arrested When Patrol Became Suspicious Of Speed of Car

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 5—(AP)—Three St. Louisans with long prison records were charged by Cole County Prosecuting Attorney James T. Riley tonight with burglary and larceny on a safe-cracking here last night, Patrol Superintendent Hugh H. Waggoner said.

The three, Waggoner said, broke into a grocery store here, forced open a safe with hammer and chisel and stole an amount said by the owner to be around $1,000.

Tony Diemler, owner of the market, identified part of some $722 recovered because he saved old coins. The money found on the men included two silver dollars dating back around 1880, which Diemler said were his.

Suspicious Of Car Speed

The men, Waggoner said, were picked up early today on highway 66 in St. Louis county when Missouri highway patrolmen became suspicious of a car's speed. As the patrolmen attempted to halt the automobile, Waggoner reported, one of the occupants threw a handkerchief onto the highway. It contained currency. And the men also tried to rid themselves of hammers and chisels in the same manner.

The men are Loy Alvin Cowan, 28 (4448 North Broadway) St. Louis; Richard Samuel Hannon, 37 (4106 Detoney), St. Louis, and Arthur Joseph Berne, 34 (5261 Robin Ave.) St. Louis, all three have warrants standing against them in St. Louis.

Cowan has served a prison term in Missouri penitentiary for first degree robbery. Hannon has served sentences in Missouri, Illinois and Kansas prisons for sodomy, car theft and first degree robbery. Berne has been a convict in Missouri and Illinois for armed robbery and burglary and larceny.

Waggoner said the men "wouldn't admit a thing."

Kansas Rivers Near Bankful

By The Associated Press

Western Kansas rivers were near bankful early today (Sunday) following heavy rains which made stories of the "dust bowl" hard to believe.

Over $200,000 damage was done at Liberal, in the southwestern corner of the state, where 5.93 inches of rain in 28 hours sent creek flood-waters cascading through a third of the city. The creek is a tributary of the Cimarron river.

The upper Solomon, Saline, Smoky Hill and Republican rivers rose following heavy general rains represented by these reports: Hill City 3.37 inches, Norton 2.43, Phillpsburg 2.19, Garden City 2.08, Oberlin 2.52.

The rains ceased late yesterday, and cold weather moved in, with a possibility of light snow in northwestern Kansas.

The jury after hearing the arguments, retired about 12 o'clock Saturday noon and returned the verdict at 1:10 o'clock in the afternoon.

Young Girl is Arrested on Theft Charge

Allegedly Took Rings From Her Employer's Purse

An eighteen year old girl has been arrested on a charge of stealing a diamond dinner ring and a gold band ring from Mrs. J. C. Crutcher, 614 West Broadway, several days ago. The girl has also admitted the robbery of Junita Bozarth, in July of 1945, according to a statement she had made to police officers.

The girl, Ella Mae Caldwell, Cole Camp, is charged with grand larceny in both cases. She is held in the county jail in default of $2,000 bonds on both cases.

The girl told police she had worked for Mrs. Crutcher about three days, and saw the rings when she went to get some money from Mrs. Crutcher's pocketbook to pay the bread man. It was then she thought about taking them.

Gave Ring To Boy Friend

After getting the rings she sold the diamond to a local jewelry store for $5 and gave the other ring to her "boy friend."

In reference to the year and a half old robbery she could not remember where the Bozarth girl lived or where she worked for her, but thought it was on Prospect avenue. At the time she took considerable clothing from the home and disappeared, police say. Her memory, she told the officers, is "very poor."

There is no police report on the Bozarth robbery other than the warrant. The police issued the warrant for her arrest, which warrant they had at police headquarters. This robbery was on or about July 13, 1945.

34,000 Crowd Assured For World Series

Last Skull Sessions Held For The Sox And The Red Birds

By Gale Talbot

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5—(AP)—St. Louis' own Cardinals, who survived a rough trip to the finals, and the highly-favored Boston Red Sox held their last skull sessions and workouts at Sportsman's Park today preparatory to hooking up at 1:30 (CST) tomorrow afternoon in the opening game of the 1946 world series.

A sell-out crowd of about 34,000 was assured for both of the games which will be played here before the two clubs move up to Boston to continue the struggle.

Texas Resident Pitchers

Prospects were that a couple of Texas residents, left-handed Howie Pollet of Houston and "Tex" Hughsan, a long right-hander from Kyle, would be nominated as the starting pitchers in the opener.

Pollet, who turned in 21 victories for the Cards during the season, including a vital 4-2 triumph over the Dodgers in the first play-off game, was certain to go for Freshman manager Eddie Dyer if the strained shoulder muscle which has hampered him recently is not too painful when he warms up tomorrow. The slim portsider took heat treatments today and indicated he would be ready.

Although Manager Joe Cronin of the Sox had not stated a definite choice among his "big three"—Hughson, Dave "Boo" Ferris and Mickey Harris—the Cards felt it was a foregone conclusion they would have to look at Hughson. The big fast-baller won 20 this year, ripping off eight of his last nine stars.

Should Pollet decline the assignment, Dyer said his second choice would be another lefty, Harry Brecheen. Then, if Brecheen also feels he could use more rest after his furious ninth-inning relief stint against Brooklyn two days ago, Dyer's reluctant third choice would be George Munger, a right-hander who only recently got out of the service.

No matter what Red Bird flinger finally gets the call, the Sox will remain firm favorites to capture the series. The fence-busters who carried them to a runaway victory in the American League are figured to generate too much power for the Cards, who wound up the season with only two .300 hitters.

Boston 7-20 To Win

J. J. Carroll, the St. Louis betting commissioner whose odds on all sports events are widely regarded as official, makes Boston 7-20 to win the series; St. Louis 11-5. Broken down into basic English, he means it is necessary to put up $20 on the Sox in order to win $7, and that those liking the Cards can get back $11 for each $5 they feel like wagering.

The Boston strong boys bore a confident air when they arrived on their special train late yesterday. One after another they said calmly: "Sure, we expect to win."

The Cards were somewhat more valuable about it.

"Sure, they're the sort of team that might beat you on any pitch of a game," assented Manager Dyer while discussing his chances. "But, just the same, we can give them a hell of a rassle if we're 'right,' the way we were in that second play-off game."

The weather man continued to smile on the proceedings. This was another in a succession of warm days, and nothing worse than some cloudiness and rising winds was forecast for tomorrow's start, with the temperature going no lower than 60.

Kansas Jayhawkers Beat Wichita 14-7

LAWRENCE, Kas. Oct. 5—(AP)—The University of Kansas Jayhawks made their home debut today with a 14-7 victory over a surprisingly strong Wichita University shocker eleven. 23,345 saw the game.

Extended throughout the game, Kansas mustered strength for a pair of toushdowns in the second quarter before yielding a six-pointer to Wichita's great Negro half-back, Linwood Sexton, in the final period.

Bud French, freshman back from Kansas City, slipped through right tackle and dashed forty-four yards for the first score. Don Fambrough added the point from placement.

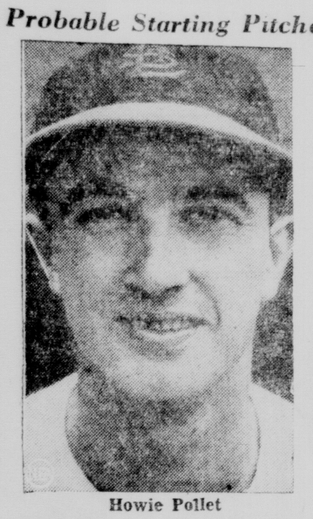

The Jayhawks stopped a strong Wichita threat later in the quarter and marched 76-yards for their second and final marker. Fullback Frank Pattee, who had contributed one gallop of 26-yards in the drive, circled left end for 35-yards on the payoff play. Fambrough again kicked the point.

Sexton and team mate Art Hodges, a former Louisiana State freshman fullback star, combined their efforts to produce the Wichita touchdown with three minutes of play remaining in the game.

Sports Writers Are Picking Cards To Win

Two Out of Three Attending Series Favor Red Birds

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5—(AP)—About two out of three baseball writers here for the world series favor the Boston Red Sox to whip the St. Louis Cardinals, a poll disclosed today.

The opinions are divided almost evenly as to whether the American Leagues sluggers will turn the trick in five or six games.

Make It Sox In Four

Only one scribe, Harry McKenna of the Boston Herald, figures Ted Williams and company will take four straight, although George Carens of the Boston Traveler opines the Red Sox may do it "in four or five."

Notre Dame Brushes Aside Pittsburgh 33-0

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 5—(AP)—Notre Dame, eyeing national football laurels, brushed aside an outclassed but game Pittsburgh eleven, 33-0, as sharpshooting quarterback Johnny Lujack staged a one man show for an Irish home opener throng of 50,368 today.

It was cool cunning Lujack, navy serviceman and star of the 1943 Irish juggernaut, who ripped the claws from the outmanned Panthers with a shower of orthodox and unorthodox passes for Notre Dame's second straight victory of the season.

Lujack, who completed 10 of 21 passes for a gain of 211 yards, tossed two touchdown passes and set up two other Irish tallies with his needle-threading tossing.

Halfback Terry Brennan and fullback Jim Mello scored two touchdowns each as the Irish slashed through the wilting Panthers for a paid of scores each in the second and third periods and a single payoff in the fourth quarter.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

TODAY is the big day in the United States—It's World Series Day—and millions will be listening while only a few thousand will have the privilege of being able to see the game. The press reports Saturday night said 34,000 would jam Sportsman Park to see the opener.

In spite of these people who insist Boston will win the series, there's still that old faithful rooting for the Birds to come out. Personally I think her "mind-over-matter" had something to do with the Cardinals pulling through. Many many years I used to meet her on the street and "rib" about the Cardinals and the Cubs, her favorites and would she give me the dickens.

Yes, it's none other than our dear friend Mrs. Henry "Ma" Leist. Mrs. Leist I feel should be named as America's Number One baseball fan. Her late husband "Dutch" Henry Leist was a real follower of the game, but he was always over-shadowed by "Ma" Leist.

It did me good, Saturday, to learn from a friend of ours that she is in the best of health and going strong and still rooting for the Red Birds. She now resides at Mercedes, Texas, but spent the last three months visiting in Corpus Christi, Texas.

There is many a baseball fan in Sedalia who will recall her and I know all wish her well.

BACK to the Series. Boston has been figured out in percentages as the best team of the two in the big fall event. But did you ever stop to think that the Cardinals ball club is composed of a bunch of players who fight it out from start to finish.

Personally I don't expect to see the series end in four games. I look for at least six games to be played. This is on the theory the Cardinals will take no bluffing, over the betting odds and will be in there thinking of the big pay envelope when it's all over.

I face a lot of oposition, I believe they'll come through and win the series. Yes in face of Ted Williams, who it appears to me the eastern sports writers have built the team around.

The Birds have a few good hitters, and they have been successful in bunching those hits timely enough to win. Anyway they are in the Series—a place where at lot of baseball writers and followers predicted they wouldn't be.

THE passing of Barney Oldfield, No. 1 Speed King of the United States, brings back memories of many Sedalians of the times when Barney Oldfield raced on the mile dirt track at the Missouri State Fair grounds. Oldfield, I am told appeared here in the days when the big wooden rubber tired wheels were on those fast racing cars.

In those days, circling the mile track in sixty-seconds was really something. Oldfield, I recall came to the fair only a few years ago, not as a racing driver but as a representative of a rubber company. He visited each driver patted him on the back and wished him luck.

Since I was a mere boy up through the years the name of Barney Oldfield has always brought to my mind speed. I have heard policemen a few years back remark to a speeder, "Who do you think you are Barney Oldfield, are you after some kind of a record?"

THE defeat of Southern California by Ohio State 21 to 0, certainly places the Missouri Tigers in the limelight. Missouri dosen't look so bad after that walloping the Californians took. Be it recalled Missouri played Ohio State to a 13-13 deadlock a week ago.

However, the game at St. Louis Friday night, didn't help the Tigers standing any too much, according to football followers. But it doesn't look any too bad, because of Coach Faurot's best weren't in the game.

I have heard some complaints about Jimmy Darr being moved to the "B" squad last week. But a check finds Jimmy saying nothing, but he has been worried over what it was all about.

Then I learn Jimmy has been nursing some bruises, and he's more important to the Tigers in Conferences tilts than outside games, when the Tigers can take care of themselves. I feel sure Darr will be back in the game, when the bruises are nursed well and the Big Six opens up for Missouri.

Faurot has his reasons—they must be respected.

Forward Pass Wins For Iowa State 20-18

AMES, Ia., Oct. 5—(AP)—Iowa State's Cyclones pulled a story book finish here today with a forward pass in the last 25 seconds to win their first home game of the season from Iowa Teachers 20-18.

End Harle Rollinger kicked two field goals and fullback Dick Howard went over on a lateral from Fay in the third quarter to get Iowa State back in the game after the Teachers led 18-0 at the half, as a result of three touchdowns, one on a pass.

Columbia Sinks The Navy 23-14

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(AP)—Columbia made speed and alertness pay off to the tune of 23-to-14 victory over a favored and apparently stronger Navy football team today to gain its first triumph over the Midshipmen since 1939.

Startling a sellout crowd of 35,000 by the speed of their comeback, the Lions apparently overpowered by Navy's reserve strength, rallied to tie the score late in the third quarter and then took advantage of two Navy lapses to score nine points in the final period.

Buckeyes of Ohio Trounce Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5—(AP)—A feather-footed, heads-up band of Buckeyes from Ohio State, paced by a hard-charging line, drubbed the Southern California Trojans, 21-0, today in an inter-sectional brid battle before 80,097 in Memorial Coliseum.

Bouncing back from a 13-13 tie with Missouri in their opener last week, the Buckeyes uncorked a fine one-two offensive punch in fleet halfback Tom James and brushing fullback Joe Wesler, the latter scoring all three touchdowns.

The word dunce is derived from the name of a famous scholastic professor of biology at Oxford, Joannes Duns Scotus.

2 falls out of 3, 45-minute limit.

Special Event

Dick Hatcher, Fresno, Calif. vs. Nelson Hebert, New Caledonia
1 fall with 30-minute time limit.

Place: State Guard Armory.
Time: Tuesday, 8 p. m.
Referee: Charles Thomas.

Roy "Cowboy" Graham, Dallas, Texas, who has gained the name as the roughest wrestler from Texas, returns to Sedalia's ring Tuesday night to meet Mickey Gold, New York City, who hasn't done so bad for himself in this rough-and- ready wrestling.

Local fans have been clamoring for Graham since wrestling resumed this season, and Gus Karras finally made the connections to get him to return for at least one, two and maybe three shows. Graham has always liked Sedalia "because," he says, "the fans get so mad at me." It's the first meeting of Graham and Gold so anything can happen so to speak.

Marshall Esteppe, Sturgeon, Mo., the wrestling postmaster, returns again to meet Walter Sirois, Montreal, Canada, claimant to the heavyweight title of that country. Esteppe needs no introduction and his tactics are such wrestling fans are assured to see Sirois made plenty mad and plenty of action can be anticipated.

Coming from Normea, New Caledonia, is Nelson Hebert, who is making his first showing in the middlewest. Hebert is scheduled against Dick Hacher of Fresno, Calif. They will go for the best fall in a thirty-minute time limit.

Little is known about this newcomer Hebert, but plenty is being expected from him according to Karras. "We are starting him in the opening event to see what he has, and if he is good enough better times will be in store for him."

Gold, when told about how rough Graham is, laughed and remarked, "He is just from that foreign country of Texas, and we New Yorker's don's scare easily."

Nebraska Defeats Kansas State 31-0

LINCOLN, Neb. Oct. 5—(AP)—Kansas State could not make six inches in four downs against a rampant Nebraska line early in today's Big Six football opener, and after that the Wildcats had no claws as the Huskers rolled to a 31 to 0 victory before an estimated 35,000.

A fumbled pass from center by Sam Vacanti that gave the ball to Kansas State on the Nebraska 24, and set up the big Wildcat chance. A Ted Grimes to Tom Jones lateral gave the Wildcats nine yards and a first down on the one foot line. Then the Huskers were penalized half the distance for offside.

Three plays later Kansas State was back on the two and a half yard line and on fourth down Jones was short by a yard after a double lateral. Roy Long, punting from the end zone, fumbled and got the kick out only to the 14, but again Kansas State could do nothing, getting only to the ten.

In the last of the first quarter Dick Thompson to Dick Hutton lateral set the speedy Husker back loose for a 34-yard touchdown run.

Vacanti had to kick the extra point from 17 yards out, the Huskers being penalized 15 yards for holding on the first try.

The game definitely went into the Nebraska bag in the second period when Vacaniti's lateral to moomey for nine yards brought a touchdown.

The third period saw the game turning into a rout, Nebraska scoring on a long Vacanti to Hutton pass that clicked for 56 yards, and again on a four yard plunge through center by Fullback Gerry Moore.

Both teams bogged down in the fourth, but Nebraska was able to score its fifth touchdown, this time on a four yard smash through the middle by Moore. Again Nebraska's try for point fizzled.

Sooners Defeat Texas A-M 10-7

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 5—(AP)—With 40 seconds remaining, dave Wallace the University of Oklahoma's 172-pound quarter-back kicked a 19-yard field goal on fourth down to break a 7-7 deadlock and gave the Sooners a 10-7 edge over Texas A. and M. College today.

Although the Sooners outplayed the Cadets throughout the game, the stubborn Aggie line continually turned back Oklahoma scoring bids. It looked like the game would end in a deadlock after both teams threatened in the fourth quarter, the Aggies moving to the one-foot line before being turned back.

Then Oklahoma put on its final drive, moving 21 yards after taking an Aggie punt to the Cadet 5. The Sooners picked up only a yard after three downs and with the crowd of 28,000 fans screaming Oklahoma was penalized five yards back to the nine for delaying the game.

With the clock showing just 40 seconds left, Wallace split the uprights for the three points that game Oklahoma the contest.

Cape Girardeau Teachers Beat Southern Illinois

CARBONDALE, Ill., Oct. 5—(AP)—Southeast Missouri State College of Cape Girardeau downed the Southern Illinois Normal football team this afternoon here, 20-13.

Halfback Webb Halbert led the Missouri team with all three touchdowns while Joe Brudebaker made good on two of three tries for point after touchdown.

Southern Illinois waited until the second half to get ont the score books when Gene Stotlar, Pickneyville, dashed 75 yards for Illinois' first score. A pass from Bill Malinsky to Don Creach gave the Illinois team their second six points.

The log cabin's first appearance in North America was in 1638, when members of the Swedish West India company set up a trading post and village at Delaware bay.

Tigers Win 19 To 0 Over St. Peters's

Touchdowns Made For The Tigers By Rodgers And Miller

Smith-Cotton high school Tigers came through Friday night to trounce on St. Peter's high school at Jefferson City by a score of 19 to 0. It was the first win of the 1946 season for the Sedalia aggregation who dropped their first to Kemper Military Academy 6 to 7 and to Marshall high school Owls 13 to 6.

Tigers were consistent in their plunging through and around the St. Peter's Saints line during the entire game. The Saints were just unable to stop the onward rush of the Sedalians. However, Jefferson City laid claim to opposing the heavier team. The Sedalians on average weight tipped the scales to about a thirty-pound heavier squad.

The Saints held the Tigers during the first quarter and did fairly well in the second. After working the pigskin down to the five yard stripe, Rodgers carried it over for the touchdown. Jefferson City was off-sides but Sedalia refused the penalty. "Big Jim" Egbert booted the ball between the posts and over the cross bar for the conversion to end the half, Sedalia leading 7 to 0.

After a plowing attack in the third quarter Miller took it over for the second score and put the Tigers in the lead 13 to 0 in the Third stanza of the game. In the final quarter a shovel pass to Miller brought about another touchdown adding up the tally to 19 to 0.

The final setup touchdown came after Potts hurled a 30-yard pass from his 40 yard line to put the ball on the Saints 30-yard stripe. Two running plays put it in position for the final touchdown.

Of the passes, both teams completed two. The Saints went to the air ten times while the Tigers took that route only six.

Henry Frnka Jo., Critically Injured

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 5—(AP)—Husky young Henry Frnka, Jr., son of football famous Henry Frnka, Tulane University coach, fought for life today against a brain injury suffered last night in the waning moments of his Tulsa Will Rogers high school team's gridiron battle with Tulsa Central.

The 17-year-old backfeld star was reported by physicians to have a 50-50 chance to live after undergoing an operation by Dr. Jess D. Herrman, Oklahoma City specialist.

His father, whose Tulane eleven met Florida at New Orleans today, was at his bedside after a trip by chartered plane. Hospital attendants said the elder Frnka was near collapse.

Mrs. Frnka followed her husband here by plane.

Young Frnka, who scored one touchdown and contributed heavily to another in his team's bitterly contested 14-7 triumph over its intra-city rival, crumpled in violent collision with an opposing line backer while carrying the ball with only two minutes left to play.

A shocked crowd of 15,000 watched as the boy was carried from the field. Spectators said it was obvious to the stands that the two players' impact had left the Frnka youth badly injured.

He was still unconscious late today. His condition showed slight improvement soon after the operation, but later worsened. He was being given oxygen.

Decontrol For Flour Denied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—petition to decontrol wheat flour, semolina and farina, filed by the OPA flour milling industry advisory committee recently, was denied by the agriculture department Friday .

The committee had asked for an end of price controls on these items on the ground that ample wheat is available. The department disagreed, declaring that world import requirement of the grain exceed exportable world supplies by more than 35 percent.

These flour products "must be considered in short supply," the department said.

Wheat, on the other han, is free of price controls.

The industry committee may now appeal to Secretary Anderson for a hearing. If the petition is again denied, the committee may then appeal to the three-man decontrol board.

Herman Falker, secretary of the milling advisory committee, said such a hearing will be requested and that the matter will be carried to the decontrol board if necessary.

He's From Paree

Representing Paris Post No. 1, Sedley Peck, above, came all the way from the French capital to attend the 28th annual American Legion convention in San Francisco. Peck, now a newspaperman, is one of the A. E. F. doughboys who remained in France after World War I.

It's Art—$2500 Worth

In case you are wondering what the picture above is, it's the painting that won over 5034 rivals to gain first prize of $2500 for artist Boris Deutsch of Los Angeles in the third annual Pepsi-Cola national art competition. In case you wonder what it means, it's called "What Atomic War Will Do to You." When 248 of the paintings recently went on exhibition in New York City, 5000 people tried to jam into the gallery and the overflow stood in a block-long line on Fifth Avenue.

Dr. O'Brien

The Doctor Says

"Eating for 2" Doesn't Mean to Double Up

By William A. O'Brien, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Excessive weight gain in pregnancy results from self-indulgence by expectant mothers who have been told that they are "eating for two." Obstetricians have found that the weight of the newborn child is seldom affected by how much the mother eats, except in the cases of extreme deficiency.

Total weight gain in pregnancy averages 28 pounds. (The weight gain should not be allowed to exceed 25 per cent of the mother's original weight.) At birth, the increase in weight is accounted for as follows: Infant, afterbirth and membranes, 11 pounds; uterus, 2½ pounds; breasts, 3 pounds; storage of protein, 4 pounds; increase of liquid portion of blood and tissue fluid, 7½ pounds. The average mother leaves the hospital after the birth of her child weighing within a pound or two of her pre-pregnancy weight.

It's Easy to Over-Eat

Expectant mothers are urged by their physicians to replenish their tissues without adding additional body fat. Many women through boredom develop the habit of eating between meals or going down at night for raids on the icebox. The attentive husband usually indulges his wife at this time by searching the stores for things which she fancies. This is a commendable practice unless it results in excessive weight gain or interference with regular meals. Too little weight gain may be just as undesirable as too much. An increase in weight in normal pregnancy is inevitable; failure to gain actually means loss. Recent studies have shown that mothers on deficient diets may harm their babies, as the fetus is essentially a parasite as far as nutrition is concerned. If the mother has the food, the baby will get it, but if she cannot supply it, he will have to go without. Such infants may be nearly normal in weight, but may show deficiencies in other ways.

Gain Should Be Gradual

Weight gain in pregnancy should be gradual and persistent. (Excessive gain should be called to the attention of the physician in charge.) Expectant mothers need plenty of protein in the form of meat, eggs, fish, and milk, certain cereals and vegetables. In the old days mothers were warned about the dangers of eating too much meat at this time, but mothers who get an extra ration of meat do best.

Minerals such as calcium, iron, phosphorus, and others can be supplied by the diet. Milk and certain vegetables are good sources of iron.

Extra fruit will not only supply minerals and vitamins, but it will also be laxative. Cooked fruits twice a day may obviate the use of cathartics.

QUESTION: I have been given some clothes which were worn by a woman who had cancer. Are they dangerous?

ANSWER: No, cancer is not contagious.

Bound Over To Higher Court

Henry L. Lindsey, 805 North Prospect avenue, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, waived his preliminary hearing before Magistrate W. E. Scotten, ex-officio justice of the peace, and was bound over to the action of the October term of criminal court.

Lindsey was released on a $1,000 bond for his appearance in the higher court.

Investigation Is Likely On Mules Sent Yugoslavia

By Alex H. Singleton

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—F. H. LaGuardia, renowned as a big city mayor but not on such solid ground as a naturalist, had a reeady explanation Friday of charges that Yugoslavia has been using UNRRA mules for its army.

LaGuardia, the UNRRA director-general, delivered to a news conference this theory as to how the charges arose:

The American army presented some mules to the Yugoslav army some months ago. UNRRA sent other mules there for relief and rehabilitation work. Time passed, and the Yugoslavs did a little mule-swapping among themselves—for breeding purposes, LaGuardia said.

That satisfied the questioners, temporarily. But after the conference was over and LaGuardia had departed, it dawned on at least one reporter that mules are hybrids, bred by crossing a horse wit ha jackass, and they do not reproduce.

The charges arose from published allegations by four unidentified UNRRA workers just back fro Yugoslavia that Marshal Tito has been using mules and trucks with "U. S. S." markings to move troops and supplies up to the Trieste area.

Don't Brand On Neck

"You'll find a good many mules in Yugoslavia with small 'US' branded on their necks," LaGuardia commented.

"We don't band them on the neck—we brand them on another part of the anatomy," and he thumped himself somewhere below the top of his desk.

In any case, LaGuardia announced, he has sent a mission of "high ranking UNRRA officials" to Yugoslavia. He said he would "take action" if the charges are supported.

"What kind o faction? he was asked.

"Yet's wait until we come to that," he replied.

Undessecretary of State Dean Acheson placed the United States on record in favor of a vigorous UNRRA investigation of the charges. He told his news conference this country always had maintained a firm conviction that such complaints should be investigated on the ground that the United States contributes a very large percentage of UNRRA's supplies and funds.

Fourth Generation of Swiss Watchmakers: Returns from Servic To Realize Ambitio

Albert Zurcher, Jr.

Albert Zurcher, Jr., returned vet eran, is realizing his boyhoo dream with the opening of hi large and modern jewelry stor Monday on the northeast corne of Third street and Ohio avenu

The fourth generation of Swis watchmakers, Zurcher started i business in Sedalia eight years ag at 225 South Ohio avenue in little space. He had plans for ex pansion, but the war interfered Now the longed for day is at hand

The new store has been deco rated in light blue and white t show the jewels to the best effec The floor covering is in shades o tan and show cases are of glass and wood with light finish in mod ern design. On the north side of the building is the jewelry department and on the right side are electrical appliances. The repair department will be in the rear of the store, where there will be four benches. The office will also be in the rear of the store on the north side.

Personnel

Mr. Zurcher is owner and manager of the store, with Miss Virginia Pinkepank as assistant manager. R. R. Conn is repair department manager, with his son, Russell Conn, Jr., and Norman W. Stahl working under him.

Ulrich Zurcher, great grandfather of Mr. Zurcher, learned the trade of watchmaker in Switzerland many years ago, teaching it to his son, Gottfried Zurcher, who was a manufacturer of Swiss watches in that country. Gottfried Zurcher taught the trade to his son, Albert Zurcher, who came to the United States and now is a jeweler in Marceline, Mo., and Albert Zurcher, Jr., learned the trade from his father.

Swedish Women Travel on Fast-Flying Bicycles

By Eddy Gilmore
(For Hal Boyle)

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—There must be no large city in the world except Stockholm where the male population knows so much about the female population's knees.

It's all a matter of bicycles and short skirts.

Ladies from every walk of Swedish life fill the capital's streets and squares with fast-flying bikes and a journey on foot through the city's thoroughfars is like a voyage in a sea of knees.

It is true that few women in the world appear to equal Sweden's in general modesty—that is, until they get on a bike.

Dresses are still short here, very short, and as hundreds upon hundreds of bicycles glide past, there are knees to the right of you . . . knees to the left . . . knees in front and all directions . . . they twinkle, bob, jump, kick, sway and pump—a great undulating pageantry of rayon covered knees.

Matter of Course

The males accept it all as a matter of course. Bicycles have been with the Swedes for a long time and knees for even longer. Both are here to stay.

From first-hand observation in walks through Stockholm, I am able to report that Swedish ladies dress differently than American and Russian ladies, at least in the stocking division.

Here there are few if any rolled stockings, and round garters seem to have no mission in Sweden. Stockings are firmly hitched to milady's person, perhaps because of the bicycles.

Bare knees are sometimes seen. Perhaps I'm here out of the bare season, but desultory search along these lines reveals that Sweden is nothing like as bare-legged or bare-kneed as the United States, Britain or Russia.

The size and shape of a lady, or her knees, have nothing to do with whether or not she chooses to ride a bike, but I have noticed that different ladies ride the bicycle differently and therefore have concluded that there are styles in this as in just about evehything else.

A Dashing Style

Some employ the dashing style. This calls for sitting very erect on the seat and sort of sweeping through the street.

Others use the hell-for-leather method, a system whereby the rider bends low over the handlebars and raises her knees almost to her chin.

There is the sedate system—riding high, pedaling slowly and allowing for no short spurts or stops.

Then there is the languid style. These riders sway back and forth, get in people's way, are shouted at by others and seem to be going nowhere in a hurry.

In none of them, however, does anyone seem to care a whit about how much knee is showing.

Colorful California Clothes

In their current collections, California designers use colorful Indian and South American motifs for their sparkling resort and casual fashions. Lower left, Louella Ballerino trims her peasant-type patio dress with embroidery motifs she developed from a Brazilian pattern. Upper left, Addie Masters, California designer famed for glamorous stay-at-home clothes, embroiders the Zumi Indian dance in sequins and jewels on the yoke and sleeves of her chalky white slack suit, inset center. Upper right, Agnes Barrett is the creator of the Mexican-inspired sun dress, lower right, which teams a bare midriff blouse with a full skirt which has a ruffled hemline.

BY NAOMI BLACK
NEA Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—California's lively influence on American resort and casual clothes can usually be traced to the designer whose response to a colorful environment is as apparent in his surroundings in the vivid paintings of an artist.

There are many such designers. Current collections owe their sparkle, color and fresh ideas to a pool of talents.

The work of three—Addie Masters, Louella Ballerino, and Agnes Barrett—is as familiar to fashion-conscious women as prestige-signatures are to lovers of art. All three designers are California's adopted daughters. Their birthplaces represent as diverse points of the U.S.A. as an Illinois farm, a small town in Iowa and the city of St. Louis, Mo.

Blazing Color

The fashion forte of the St. Louis-born Addie Masters is glamorous at-home clothes which are a contradiction of pure-bred tailoring and gay or tongue-in-cheek details.

Beginning her career as an amateur who made lovely clothes for the fun of it and expensive, handmade things for her pet cause, Miss Masters swung from that beginning to an apprenticeship with one of California's pioneer sportswear designers. That was eight years ago. Today, her leisure-wear clothes are coveted by the nation's discriminating women.

Typical is this season's gold-belted white slack suit. On the impeccably tailored shirt, at yoke and sleeves, is a blaze of color in an Indian dance print accented by sequins and jewels.

Specialty of Louella Ballerino, who hails from Brooklyn, Iowa, is what she calls "native fashions." These are playclothes designed for women of both North and South America. Their designer is a former teacher of fashion design. Now the manager of a far-flung business, Mrs. Ballerino is also an inveterate museum-goer, student of history books and traveler. She tells a story in her designs that stems usually from folklore or native crafts. Her favorite peoples are those of the two Americas.

Her themes may come from Aztec folklore. Or they may be Brazilian-inspired, with one of the most remote villages of that land as the source. From such a village comes the inspiration for the gay trimmings that brightens her peasant skirts.

Indian Inspiration

The farm-born Agnes Barrett, who first turned her talents loose on her dolls, later became a pattern-maker and today owns her own business, goes to the "little people" of the west for inspiration.

Favorites are the reservation Indians and the southwest's peons. Their style influence shows in her simply-styled, casual clothes.

Hers was the first "broomstick" skirt, its idea borrowed from costumes worn by Indian women. Hers is the side-wrapped or draped skirt which teams with a Mexican-type bodice.

Also Barrett's and as typical, is the midriff dress, which stems from peon sources. This season's authentic calico print makes news in a midriff dress which pays tribute to peon fashions with squared neckline, knee flounce and sleeve ruffles.

Has Tick Like Clock In Head

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5—(AP)—Jack Husband, 16 Hollis, Okla., would gladly trade a head which ticks like a clock for a little peace and quite.

For seven years, night and day Jack's head has emitted a metallic clicking sound which now is loud enough to be heard over a telephone. Doctors have tried and failed to determine the cause.

Now the youth has entered a hospital here for a complete check, hoping that a diagnostic specialist can solve the mystery.

Jack, son of Dr. and Mrs. Roy H. Husband of Hollis, was nine years old when the ticking began in school one day.

The noise can be heard about four inches from either of the youth's ears but is a little louder at the left ear. Jack believes it about twice as fast as his pulse.

Barclay Curtis, distributor for a sound electronic dectating machine has made recordings at the request of a doctor of the noise and of Jack's heartbeat, for a comparison of the record of the head noise when played back, Curtis commented, "sounded louder than a watch."

Suffocation ranks number two as killer of newborn babies, accounting for about 50,000 infant deaths a year.

Bennett Pleads To End Controls

GARDEN CITY, Mo., Oct. 5—(AP)—Rep. Marion T. Bennett Friday night called for 6th district voters to "shake off the shackles of too much government and get America going again" toward a new area of peace, prosperity and freedom.

The Springfield Republican, in an address here, said, "the decision the voter must make Nov. 5 is whether or not to support a candidate pledged to help clear up the confusion, clean out the controls and corruption, and keep out the communism.

"In brief do you want to keep America American? That is my pledge to you. That is what I have been fighting for in Washington against the entrenched forces which have been protected by 16 years of new deal majorities in Congress."

Bennett appealed for the support of "Democrats who place country before party" in his race for re-election as Sixth district Congressman.

Many people spend a lifetime seeking "the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow"; and just as many people spend an equal amount of time seeking unusual diamond creations . . . unique pieces that bring forth "oh's and ah's" wherever they are shown.
Generally speaking, the average person purchasing a diamond is unaware of the multitude of shapes and colors available. Emerald cuts, marquises, kites, baguettes, triangles, and half-moons are but a few of the many available shapes. Diamonds in colors such as blue, red, green, violet, orange, brown, and black are nature's finest compliment to an outstanding diamond ring.
Drop in and ask to see some of our fancy diamonds. We'll gladly order something special for you if we do not have in stock the exact shape or color you are seeking.

I

"BRUCE BARTLETT!" cried Rose, her voice rising until it attained a thin squeal of horrified incredulity. "You're not, Gayle! You're not going to marry that wolf. You can't! You're joking."

She paused in her pacing to glare at Gayle, who was lying back against the pillows on the davenport. "I don't believe it. I've seen what I've seen and I still don't believe it."

"I'm not fooling. Look." Gayle slipped her hand under a pillow and produced a small box. She touched a spring. The lid flew open and a diamond ring stood revealed, the superb central stone set in a cluster of smaller diamonds. "We're really engaged, Rose. I wrote the folks this morning. I'm not telling anybody else yet but you."

Rose stared at the diamond. "Must have cost him all of a week's allowance," she observed, her voice powder dry.

Laughing softly, Gayle slipped the ring on the fourth finger of her left hand. "It's beautiful, and you know it—and the diamond isn't so big. Bart wanted to give me a sapphire, but I said no, a diamond or nothing. I didn't care if it was just a chip, but it had to be a diamond. I'm a cornfed commoner from Ohio, and I always planned to have a diamond engagement ring. Nothing else would seem right."

"Right?" Rose took a step and let herself fall into a big overstuffed chair. "Right? Nothing could be wronger—nothing! You can't be such a fool, Gayle. You've got brains. Listen! That bird will make life hell for you. He's no good. You know he's no good. Gayle, where's your sense? I never thought you'd fall for a pretty face."

"Pretty? Do you really call Bart pretty, Rose?"

"No, darn it! He's not pretty; he's so handsome he's a pain in the gizzard. That's one trouble with him. He's a regular poster, and there's just about as much to him. He's rotten spoiled. Look at him, Gayle! It's all in his face. Anybody can see what he is."

"Did you ever see anyone more popular?" Gayle asked patiently. "Now, be honest. Have you?"

"That's another thing wrong with him. He's—" Rose flung her arms wide and cried helplessly, "Oh, what's the use?"

* * *

GAYLE sat up straight on the couch. "You won't believe me, Rose," she began, "but I'll bet I know everything you're thinking. When I first met Bart, I didn't think any better of him that you do. It's taken nearly three years for me to change my mind. . . ."

"Black Bart with the swivel hips," Rose observed, her voice honed to a razor edge with sarcasm. "Black Bart, Yale's miraculous wing-back; Bruce Bartlett of Germantown, New York, Newport, Bar Harbor, and points east, west, north, and south. Bruce Bartlett, the glamor boy of Yale and the night clubs. Black Bart making a touchdown; Black Bart and his current deb dancing in the Sert Room; Black Bart wearing the latest thing in sport jackets; Black Bart—"

Gayle's laugh interrupted further listing by Rose.

"Exactly," Gayle said. "Just exactly.

"I took it for granted, too, that he must be conceited and spoiled and stupid. I thought he was a sort of professional glamor boy. And my first meeting with him didn't change my opinion either. That was about the time I met you, our first year here. Before we took this apartment together.

"I'm not fooling. Look." Gayle touched a spring in the small box and the lid flew open. A diamond ring stood revealed. "Must have cost him all of a week's allowance," Rose observed.

"It's surprising in a way I felt like that, because I was ready to believe everything about Yale was wonderful then. I was thrilled to my toes to be a student at the School of Fine Arts.

"Bart and my cousin Nate had graduated two years before, and they'd come up from New York for a football game. Nate invited me to go, and he took me to a tea dance at his club afterward. Bart was there with some New York beauty. I knew who he was the minute I saw him, even before Nate pointed him out. My goodness, how the girls fell on him!"

"Makes you want to vomit," observed Rose, gagging daintily.

"That's about the way it affected me, and when Nate brought him around, I had just one idea; I was going to show him I wasn't thrilled at all. . . . But he wasn't the way you think, Rose. He never played Romeo, and I began to find out that he wasn't conceited and vain the way I'd supposed he was. He knows he's handsome, I guess. I don't know how he could help knowing it, and, of course, he knows he's a great athlete. Everybody in the country who ever reads a newspaper or a magazine knows that. But he doesn't show off his looks or talk about his athletic fame; he never mentions either. He's really very modest. And he's kind."

* * *

A STRONG word of disbelief formed itself on Rose's lips, but for once she did not let it escape. "And now," she said softly, "you're going to marry him. A rich man's wife . . . Will you like that, Gayle?"

"No. I told him I wished he hadn't so much money, and he said he didn't really have any money at all. He works in the New York office, you know, but he doesn't make much. He lives mostly on an allowance from his father."

"You love the beast. Is that it?"

Gayle bent her head in acknowledgment, and her cheeks grew very pink. "I know you understand people better than I do, Rose. Your caricatures are enough to prove that. I'll tell you something: I'd have been engaged to Bart two months ago if it hadn't been for you. I knew you didn't like him, and I was afraid to marry anybody you disapproved of. But—but—"

Rose sighed, and again she pressed Gayle's hand. "All right, sister, if it's got to be, it's got to be. I'm not going to say anything more, and I'll be so sweet to your hero he'll never guess what I think of him."

"He doesn't guess now, Rose—and he likes you; he really does."

"Why not? I haven't spit in his face, have I? Are you going to take him home?"

"Yes. Next week-end I'm going with him to Germantown to see his folks; then the next week-end he's going home with me."

"I'll bet you're worried about both visits."

"Of course I am. I guess every engaged girl is. I'm a little afraid to meet his mother. They say she's very beautiful, you know."

"Didn't I read somewhere his father was sick?"

"Yes. He's an invalid now. It's his heart. Bart says he may live for years, or he may die any minute."

"Tough. That's tough." Rose patted Gayle's hand with her right hand and squeezed lightly with her left; then she freed both and placed them in her lap. "Thanks for not getting mad."

"You were really very mild—for you, I mean," said Gayle, turning to smile at her. "I wish you liked Bart, though. You don't know how I wish it."

"Maybe I will some day. I hope so, but I believe what I see in a face, Gayle. Most people never look at other people—not really, but I do. Bart looks arrogant and sullen and selfish and childish to me; that's what I don't like about him." She shrugged her shoulders. "But why go into all that again? You think I'm nuts."

Gayle stood up. "No," she said smiling down at her, "not nuts—but wrong for once."

Once more Rose sighed. "I hope to goodness I am."

The Daily Washington Merry-go-'Round

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—A significant battle over the stock market has been taking place backstage between two-fisted Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles and Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange. The outcome concerns every investor in the country.

Schram and the big Wall Street brokers are demanding that the government again permit margin-buying. Eccles has been militantly opposed.

Schram and friends say that if stocks can be purchased partly on credit, it will bolster the falling market.

Eccles on the other hand is dead opposed to speculation on credit during the present inflationary period. He is also reluctant to encourage the public to get in on a stock market which suffered its greatest monthly loss in history during September. In that month the value of securities dropped eight billion dollars, more than twice as much as during "black October, 1929."

Eccles' advisers argue that the only thing which prevented the market drop from becoming a complete financial disaster was the no-margin rule, which meant that every legal trader in the stock market was buying for cash. Thus, when prices dropped, there was no rush to borrow money to cover the drop. As a result of this insistence on no margins, the effect on the country was cushioned.

Eccles, his friends say, is not going to budge on the no-margin rule now.

La Guardia Sees Stalin

When UNRRA Director La Guardia and aides visited Moscow on their recent tour of Europe, his entire party was eager to see Stalin. The Kremlin invitation, however, only permitted La Guardia and two other UNRRA officials to call on the top Soviet leader.

La Guardia, therefore, suggested to his aide, Joseph Lilly, that he divert the rest of the party by taking them to Lenin's tomb, where the body of the father of the Russian revolution is still perfectly preserved.

Late that night, the party reassembled, and Lilly eagerly asked La Guardia what he had learned from Stalin. Replied Fiorello:

"I got as much out of Stalin as you did out of Lenin."

Mexican Meat Ban

So much friction has been kicked up by the U. S. embargo against Mexican cattle and hoof-and-mouth disease that President Truman has taken the unusual step of writing a personal letter to the president of Mexico about it. In his letter Truman backed up the Agriculture Department's embargo and denied that it was inspired by U. S. cattlemen who want to avoid Mexican competition.

Truman told the Mexican chief executive that he believed the ban was entirely justified as a precautionary measure against the threat of hoof-and-mouth disease, adding that it would be rescinded only when officials of the department's animal husbandry division were satisfied no danger exists.

Cause of all the trouble is some breeder bulls which Mexico imported from Brazil.

Real fact is that more than a year ago, when Mexican stock raisers were arranging to purchase the Brazilian bulls, the Agriculture Department warned Mexico that entry of the animals might bring a U. S. embargo on all Mexican cattle. Officials explained that disease control in Brazil was inadequate and that several epidemics of the dread hoof-and-mouth malady had been recorded there during the past two decades.

This warning was ignored. One hundred and sixteen Brazilian bulls were cleared through the Mexican quarantine station on Sacrificios island, in the Gulf of Mexico off Vera Cruz and brought to the mainland. A few months later, the Mexicans placed a second order for 327 additional bulls.

On June 4 of this year, while that second shipment was en route to Sacrificios, the Agriculture Department banned all Mexican cattle from entering the United States. Agriculture attaches of the U. S. Embassy had reported that a number of the original bulls from Brazil showed symptoms of being hoof-and-mouth disease carriers.

Theoretically, the second lot of 327 bulls had been held intact on Sacrificios, pending exhaustive tests by a joint commission of U. S. and Mexican government veterinarians. Officials say the truth is, however, that nearly a score of these animals have already found their way to the mainland.

These are the facts which led the Agriculture Department to continue its embargo, with President Truman's official approval, in the face of vigorous protests from both Mexican and Brazilian cattle interests, as well as some breeders in the U. S. A.

NOTE: The ban on Mexican cattle today helps contribute to the meat shortage, since Mexican beef—much of it owned by U. S. ranchers—has always sold north of the border in large quantities in the past.

Admiral Halsey Gets Bored

Admiral William "Bull" Halsey is beginning to fidget in his new job on the president's super-advisory board of five-star army-navy officers.

Since his semi-diplomatic mission to South America, where he inspected the navies of various countries, Halsey has had little to do. Privately, the tough little skipper hankers to take that job as vice-president of Pan American Airways, which is still open to him.

As the boss of Pan AM's west coast operations, Halsey would double his present income, which is about $213,000 a year, counting longevity pay. However, he isn't interested in the extra money. His sparkplug temperament craves action, in or out of the navy. And life is becoming very dull in his spacious office at the Navy Department.

"It's a hell of a note," Halsey griped to aides recently. "I have a job with nothing to do, a great big office to do it in and two people to help me."

"Russia Wants Peace"—Smith

Ambassador "Beetle" Smith has sent a confidential memo to the State Department saying he believes Marshal Stalin was sincere in his recent statement that peace between the major powers is likely during the coming year.

Ambassador Smith points that the Russian-five year plan is aimed more at the reconstruction of Nazi-devastated areas than at an armaments program for world aggression, and expressed belief that Russia might consider a proposal for general world disarmament if advanced by the U.S.A.

The ambassador also reported that the Russians desperately need manpower for reconstruction and would like to use part of their 4,000,000-man army for that purpose.

Industry's Mr. Six-by-Six: No. 5

Kaiser Has Battled the Govt. Since Boulder Dam Days; Sometimes He Wins

A constant battle with the government, Kaiser's relations with labor have been contrastingly peaceful. Here he has a friendly huddle with the late Sidney Hillman (right) over plans of the huge Kaiser Permanente magnesium plant in 1941, when the prominent labor leader was working for the government as co-director of OPM.

(Editor's Note: This is the last of five informative dispatches in which NEA's Washington Correspondent takes you behind the Congressional probe of Kaiser to show you Kaiser as a political issue, his partners and how they grew, his post-war gambles with war plants, his satellites, and his rows with the government.)

By Peter Edson
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Henry Kaiser is an old hand at doing battle with government agencies. His current campaign to get a reduction on his $125,000,000 worth of R. F. C. loans that went to build the Fontana steel plant, and the investigation of his shipbuilding profits by the house merchant marine committee, are merely a couple more chapters in his government service record.

In his first big row, Harold Ickes, then P. W. A. administrator, tried to fine the Six companies $300,000 for working men overtime at Boulder Dam. That was back in the depression days when the work was supposed to be spread to as many people as possible. Kaiser, as sponsor or directing chairman for the Six Companies on this project, had to come to Washington to see about it. He got the fine reduced to $100,000.

Expensive Talker

Kaiser has been coming to Washington ever since. He spends considerable time here, in New York, as well as on the west coast. Between times he runs up his famous $250,000 a year telephone bills with conference calls to his "cow boy" lieutenants.

In another of his famous rows, the government was on his side. That was in 1939. Kaiser had long been angered by the uniformly high prices charged by west coast cement makers. Buying a limestone deposit near San Jose, Cal., and wangling a new low freight rate from Union Pacific, Kaiser next went to the Bank of America, borrowed $7,000,000 to build a cement plant and put in a bid on an $11,000,000 cement contract. He beat the combine's price by 22 cents on a barrel, and in time his Permanente cement plant became the world's largest, turning him in profits of $1,000,000 a year.

Kaiser had a one-fourth interest in this venture, the partners being Utah Construction, General Construction, J. F. Shea, MacDonald and Kahn, and Pacific Bridge from the Six Companies.

Kaiser stormed in and out of Washington all during the war. In his zeal to get steel for his ships he bought some above O. P. A. ceiling prices and they cracked down on him.

Then there was the famous row with Tommy Corcoran. Without quite realizing it, Kaiser took on Tommy the Cork as a lawyer to help him get government authority to build a west coast steel mill. When Tommy put in a bill for $135,000 legal fees, a beautiful friendship was broken and Kaiser learned that Corcoran's name was poison in many influential circles in Washington.

Kaiser's first shipbuilding contracts were on a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis, the fee being in the vicinity of around $100,000 per ship, with bonuses for speed. When Kaiser began to make what the Maritime Commission considered too much money on these contracts, Admiral Emory Land moved to cut down the fee to about $60,000. Kaiser yelled, but lost. Now the house merchant marine committee thinks his profits should be cut still further.

Kaiser's most famous shipbuilding row was over the baby flat-top program. He sold the Maritime Commission on this idea for licking the submarine menace, but ran into a brass wall of opposition from the navy admirals. Finally, through Vice President Wallace and White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre, Kaiser got the idea in to President Roosevelt. Admiral King was directed to reverse the original turn-down of the navy brass and Kaiser got a contract to build 50 escort carriers. They more than distinguished themselves.

Kaiser ran afoul of the American Medical Association when he put in a pre-paid medical aid program for workers in his western shipyards. Senate committees investigated, but nothing much came of the issue. Kaiser still has his health plans in operation, however, and they're working.

The Kaiser undertakings have had surprisingly little labor troubles. Kaiser plays along with union labor and the union leaders like him for it. His northwestern shipyards had a little CIO trouble early in the war. Kaiser signed a contract with the AFL boilermakers to build his ships, and the CIO tried to muscle in on the contract. Kaiser stuck to his guns and got backing from the Senate's Truman committee. When Kaiser signed other contracts with CIO, they stopped warring.

He was the first of the steelmakers to sign with CIO United Steelworkers at the Presidentially approved 18½ cents an hour post-war increase. He did it in a session with Phil Murray at the White House and so set the pattern others had to follow.

Incentive Bonus

Kaiser was also first to sign with the United Auto Workers, after the General Motors strike had been going on for weeks. At his Kaiser-Frazer Willow Run plant, Kaiser has put in a $5 per car incentive bonus. Every December 20, this bonus will be divided among workers who have been on the job 90 per cent of the time and have not engaged in strikes.

The Kaiser row that really gripped popular imagination in the United States was his war-time fight to build more cargo planes. He made a sensational speech for more cargo plane construction on the west coast, then followed it to Washington. He did battle with army generals and navy admirals and they all fought him to a standstill.

Finally he got Donald Nelson to approve on $19,000,000 contract to build three experimental cargo planes from non-critical materials.

Kaiser took Howard Hughes into partnership, but they couldn't get along. Kaiser pulled out. The first Hughes plane hasn't flown yet. This time the generals and admirals were right.

Kaiser in this fight showed that he was only human after all, and that he could make a mistake.

More For Meals With Meat

Advance Of 15 Per Cent During Coming Week

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—OPA Friday allowed an increase of 15 percent in restaurant ceiling prices for meals containing meat, effective next Thursday October 10.

The increase came after OPA gave up its attempt to roll back restaurant meat offerings to the levels of last June 30.

In announcing the increase, the price agency said it would "restore the prices of restaurant meat prices to their normal relationship to the prices of other food items and also is designed to afford particular relief to that segment of the restaurant industry specializing primarily in meat items."

The OPA said the 15 percent boost "can be applied by all restaurants throughout the nation to their June 30, 1946, freeze ceilings, which generally represent their April 1-10, 1943, prices."

OPA said exact details of the changes it is making in the restaurant regulations will be issued on Tuesday, October 8.

At that time the agency said it would modify the formula for determining ceilings on meals having as the principal ingredient any decontrolled product, such as fish, poultry and dairy products.

It promised that the new order would simplify pricing of meals that include both controlled and decontrolled products.

System Of Pricing

Under the new regulation, the OPA said that the type of main dish or entree will decide the pricing system to be used.

In the case of ham and eggs or combination sandwiches, when one ingredient is decontrolled, the entire offering will be considered as a decontrolled product and quality for plus-cost ceilings. Vegetable plate dinners and combination fruit and vegetable dishes for salad will be considered as consisting of decontrolled products.

In computing their new ceiling prices, restaurants may round out the increase to the nearest nickel on items with ceilings 20 cents or more. OPA explained most restaurants fix prices at an even nickel level.

On items costing less than 20 cents such as a hamburger or sandwiches any increase may be rounded out to the next highest cent.

As a n example a hamburger with a present 15 cent ceilings plus an increase of 2¼ would have a new ceiling of 18 cents.

All restaurants changing their ceilings prices must file data with their local price boards and keep records to substantiate the increases.

Suit Is Filed Over Detainer

A petition was filed in circuit court Friday by Lola Hiltz charging Leroy Dody with forcible entry and detainer. The plaintiff asks for possession of her property and $200 damages. The defendant rents the property on 2001 South Limit from the petitioner, who alleges she served a notice in writing for him to give possession.

Attorney for the plaintiff is Harry Cooney and for the defendant is Fred F. Wesner.

In a test it was found that when penicillin was used daily in the tooth powder oral bacteria dropped from an average of 72,000 to 300 in three weeks.

Coaxial cable has been used successfully for transmitting the wide-band high frequency color television images between New York and Washington.

Cars Are Damaged In A Collision

Two autos collided at about 3:40 Friday evening at the corner of Washington avenue and Saline street. Ed Roseman 409 South Henry, was driving north on Washington in his '35 Terraplane sedan and H. L. Richards, 318 east Boonville was going east on Saline street. The left front fender of Mr. Richards' car was damaged about $10, and the left front fender of Mr. Roseman's car had damage estimated at $30.

The police made an investigation.

Schooldays Again

The "KMBC Schoolhouse" which last year received national recognition in educational circles—as well as fine acceptance by listeners around these parts — opens its door for another school season this week. The curriculum, however, has been somewhat revamped.

This year Schoolhouse time will start at 2 p.m. daily, Monday thru Friday. Gateways to Music, a series to delight the entire family—to satisfy the trained musicians, inform the novice, entertain the youngest and gratify the eldest, holds down the Monday spot.

On Tuesday The Magic Book (with Caroline Ellis) returns for another school year fresh from honors of being named by Ohio State University as radio's best primary school broadcast. The second half of Tuesday's half-hour will be taken over by Fun With Facts, a class recitation on the air for upper elementary grades.

On Wednesday The March of Science from C. B. S. occupies the entire half-hour with its exciting stories of research.

Two more programs produced locally by the KMBC Schoolhouse take care of education for Thursday—Inside the News, starting at 2 p.m., the news of the week for junior and high schools by Erle Smith—and Music Time, following at 2:15 with a carefully planned lesson in group singing for elementary grades.

As for Friday—another C.B.S. origination, Tales of Adventure, dramatizing outstanding books and stories for listeners, young and old.

In addition to this ambitious educational program undertaking, KMBC has cleared time, too, for two more C.B.S. programs — World Neighbors on Wednesday nights at 10:30 p.m. and Opinion Please on Sundays at 10:30 a.m. The latter program invites Americans to consider important questions of the day, presenting discussions from college campuses as part of each broadcast.

Have YOU Protected YOUR Right to Drive?

MISSOURI'S NEW SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY LAW

Becomes Effective Today, October 6th

This New Law was enacted to promote safe driving and to remove the irresponsible driver from the highway, and provides severe penalties for those motorists who are unable to pay for bodily injuries, death or property damage which their automobiles may cause!

PROVISIONS OF THE LAW

So far as the average motorist is concerned, the most important feature of this Law is the section which provides that any motorist who fails within thirty (30) days, to satisfy or stay any final judgment which is based upon bodily injury, death or property damage arising out of a motor vehicle accident will have his operator's license and motor vehicle registration suspended. The law further provides that such suspension shall remain in effect until the judgment is satisfied, or stayed and proof of financial responsibility is given or until a period of 3 years has elapsed.

This means that the motorist who has an accident and does not have the means to pay a judgment or does not have the proper Automobile Liability insurance may lose his right to drive for at least three years. On the other hand, the motorist who is protected with adequate Automobile Liability Insurance in a strong dependable company will be prepared to meet the requirements of the law and keep his right to drive.

Amounts Recoverable in Civil Suits Not Limited by Law

Under the provisions of this particular law, a judgment will be considered as "satisfied" upon payment of $5,000 for bodily injury to or death of one person as the result of an automobile accident and, subject to the same limit for each person, upon payment of $10,000 for more than one person injured or killed in the same accident and upon payment of $1,000 as the result of property damage in any one accident. An Automobile Bodily Injury and Property Damage Liability insurance policy with basic limits would provide sufficient coverage to meet these requirements.

It should be carefully noted, however, that judgments in bodily injury suits frequently amount to more than $5,000 and $10,000 and may run as high as $25,000, $30,000, $50,000 or higher. Also, property damage liability claims frequently run high and sometimes amount to $5,000, $10,000, $15,000 or more. Make certain, therefore, that when you buy insurance, you buy enough.

BE READY FOR THE NEXT MILE!

Since insurance is not retroactive, it is also important to make certain that protection is purchased before an accident occurs.

An accident can happen at any time. While you are on your way to work, on a shopping trip to the grocery store, en route to church—in the very next mile you drive, you may have an accident which will result in a final judgment against you and the loss of your right to drive—unless you have the proper insurance.

So, whether you are driving a little or a lot, if you are driving at all, you need Automobile Liability insurance to protect your savings, your income, and your right to drive.

YOUR MORAL RESPONSIBILITY

Civil laws, such as this one, can define financial responsibility, but remember—every time you drive your car, you have a moral responsibility, self-imposed, to respect the rights of fellow citizens and to show proper regard for life and limb.

A little extra care and courtesy on your part can go a long way toward the fulfillment of this responsibility and will aid materially in decreasing the mounting toll of automobile accidents on the nation's highways.

As for your financial responsibility, your Automobile Liability insurance policy written with adequate limits is acceptable evidence of financial responsibility, not only in Missouri but in every other State and Canada Province.

Protect Your Right To Drive By Carrying Automobile Bodily Injury and Property Damage Insurance Before An Accident! Afterwards Will Be Too Late!

Minor Crime Wave Currently Sweeping Through Paris

By Igor B. Maslowski
(For Hal Boyle)

PARIS, Oct. 5—(AP)— The prefecture of police blames the peace conference for a minor crime wave currently sweeping Paris. The number of holdups and other infractions of the law have doubled in the number reported monthly since April.

A spokesman for the prefecture explained that more than 10 per cent of the 15,000 men and 900 inspectors of the Paris police force had been assigned to provisional duties in connection with the peace conference, such as looking after the security of delegates, regulating traffic in the neighborhood of Luxembourg palace and other tasks.

Lining the streets of Parsi in their navy blue uniforms, adorned with bright red fourrageres, the Paris gendarmes maintain a clear right of way for the hundreds of sedans carrying delegates reporters and others related to the peace talks to and from the conference sessions.

Newspapers Report Holdups

Paris newspapers have been carrying numerous stories about night holdups on the streets, which they claim have risen on an unprecedented scale. The prefecture, however, said the August report of 80 serious crimes was only half that reached in the peak month of December, 1945, when black marketeers and "carpet baggers" of various types were flourishing in Paris as an aftermath of the war.

Official figures released by the police showed 167 outrages in December, 156 in January, 109 in February, 75 in March, 46 in April, 33 in May, the low month, 48 in June, 62 in July and 80 in August.

Nevertheless, municipal authorities have added two special night squads to the regular police force. These patrol the deserted streets in luxurious cars which bear no resemblance to the normal police "paniers a salade" and are equipped with the most modern radio sets and spotlight installations. The inspectors on these squads, armed with tommy guns, are chosen among the "tough ones," experts in boxing and judo.

Reports Are Late

"The trouble with the victims of these assaults is that they never report to the police until it's too late to chase the mobsters," the prefecture spokesman said. About one-third of the presumed criminals involved in the assaults have been arrested.

Taxicab drivers are among the favorite victims of the gangsters. Usually they are ordered to some remote street where, under the knocked out by a blackjack, they are robbed of their day's earnings.

French crime experts, however, do not consider the situation too tragic. In their opinion, there's nothing really to worry about, since demoralization of youth and crime waves are normal phenomenons of postwar times. Some of them even assert that the rising crime rate may be considered as a definite tendency to the restoration of normal peacetime life.

Stokley Home Club Elects

The Stokley Home Economics Extension club held its October meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. E. F. Rissler. Thirty members and visitors were present. A dinner to which all contributed was served at the noon hour.

The meeting was opened by singing "Follow the Gleam." The devotional service was in charge of Mrs. Paul Faulkner. Roll call was answered by everyone displaying or describing their favorite household gadget. Final plans were made for "Achievement Day" and the vaccination clinic to be held at Higgins school at 2 p. m. October 9. Dr. Snavely and Miss Reba Gum will be in charge of this clinic. The club voted to sponsor a program at the Democratic rally on Friday night, October 4, at Stokley school.

The following officers were elected to serve during the year: President, Mrs. Guy Ballew; vice president, Mrs. Henry Koelling; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Lind; reporter, Mrs. Clarence Clark; parliamentarian, Mrs. Forrest Winston; child development, Mrs. Harry Elwell; reading chairman, Miss Ada French, song and game leader, Mrs. W. T. Summerskill; 4-H club leader, Mrs. Logan Colwell.

Discussed Didptheria

Mrs. E. F. Patterson gave a discussion on "Diphtheria." Mrs. Logan Colwell read a poem, "The Faithful Few." Mrs. W. A. Means demonstrated the making of narrow hems, hand rolled hems, taped hems and the napery hem. Mrs. Higgins Warren reviewed the bulletin, "The Extension Service Reports Progress."

Visitors were Mrs. Van B. Larkin, of Slater; Mrs. Katherine Smith, of Syracuse, Ill.; Mrs. Anna George, Mrs. Raymond Williams, Mrs. Jim Gunder and Mrs. Eva Hansbrough. Mrs. Hansbrough has rejoined the club. Hallowe'en games were enjoyed by everyone, and he meeting was closed by singing the club benediction. The November meeting will be held Wednesday, November 6th, at the home of Mrs. Carl Smith.

If you were to make a tour of inspection of your home today, how many of the fire hazards illustrated above would you find? Last year, property damage from fires was approximately $484,000,000, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Much of this expensive loss could have been prevented if simple precautions had been taken in time. Last year's total was 11 per cent above that of 1944, and 59 per cent above the prewar 1941 figure of $304,000,000. Authorities expect that this year, with a return to peacetime activities, adequate trained personnel in fire departments and industries, and more complete fire hazard inspections, the loss total will drop to $300,000,000 or less—but only if individual caution and alertness are observed

Fire Hinders Industrial Output

"Anyone who doubts that fire is a serious threat to present and future output of American industry would change his opinion if copies of all our newspapers for any one day were paraded before him," declared Fire Chief John Lueck today. "Hundreds of items about fires would confront him with strong evidence. From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Dakotas to Texas he would find stories of the ravages of fire and he would also see that practically every type of structure suffered. In the list would be factories, mercantile buildings, unpretentious homes, palatial residences and many others. Numerous industries of all kinds have suffered from fire in the past year. The records for some days show a greater total fire loss than others but the average in 1945 was $1,326,000 daily!"

Affecting Industry

The Chief said that reading the fire items would make a person realize that fire is actually affecting American industrial progress and future prosperity, for the material in buildings destroyed by fire is permanently removed from the economic resources of the nation. No nation can afford to waste vast quantities of its resources and 10,000 lives annually. Such a drain may eventually influence working and living conditions throughout the country.

Chief Lueck pointed out that when fire destroys an industrial plant it throws men out of work so that their efforts are lost and this, to a nation striving to make up for lost time in production, is a serious handicap. "Consider also," he emphasized, "such a fire affects the living conditions of workers' families, possibly bringing hardship. Fire limits the output of associated and dependent industries."

Citizens Can Help

Chief Lueck indicated that citizens in every walk of life can aid America's effort to reduce fire waste now increasing so rapidly. Everyone should consider it a personal problem, for it involves the protection of family and business interests as well as the broader problems of national welfare. "It is the duty of all citizens to protect life and property by acquainting themselves with the common fire hazards in most homes and places of business and then making a definite effort to put their information to work."

The Chief outlined some of the hazards to look for in all types of buildings, such as accumulations of rubbish, hot ashes placed in burnable containers instead of metal cans and paint or oil-saturated waste or rags left neglected so that spontaneous ignition may take place. He asserted that heating plants and chimneys should be checked thoroughly to make sure that they are in safe condition and the method of operating likewise should be watched to see if it increases the hazard.

Some Due to Carelessness

"It is especially important," he stressed, "for hazardous processes in industry to be cut off from the remainder of the building by fire resisting partitions or housed entirely apart from the rest of the building."

Chief Lueck said that the careless use of matches and smoking materials in both homes and businesses are responsible for nearly 30 per cent of all fires. He pointed out that this is a strictly preventable cause and advocated a definite campaign during Fire Prevention Week to bring this simple hazard to the attention of everyone and urge their cooperation.

Learn to Make Slip Covers

The High Point Homemakers Club met October 2 at the home of Mrs. L. E. Broaddus, with Mrs. Dick Jenkins assisting. Ten members answered roll call with "My favorite household gadget." The four visitors, who all became members of the club, were: Mrs. O. R. Reed, Mrs. R. W. Stephens, Mrs. Albert Dick and Mrs. G. W. Robb. The project was slip covering and upholstering, which was demonstrated by Mrs. M. F. Houk, Mrs. Frank Eck and Mrs. L. E. Broddus. October 16th was set as work day on slip covering and upholstering at Mrs. M. F. Houk's house. The year book was filled out. The club adjourned and it was decided that the next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dick Jenkins, November 6th, with Mrs. Edward Cusick and Mrs. Frank Eck assisting.

Electrical Safety Tips

OCT. 6-12 FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Permanent wiring, installed according to the National Electrical Code and properly fused, is safe from fire hazards, although frequently fires are blamed on "defective wiring" simply because no other origin is apparent. When a fire is traceable to electrical causes, it is usually due to an improper installation and subsequent neglect or to misuse of electricity or electrical equipment.

FOLLOW THESE SAFETY SUGGESTIONS

1. Have your wiring inspected to see that it conforms with the National Electrical Code, your local code or other recognized safety standard. Correct any hazardous conditions.

2. Specify code requirements when making additions, alterations or repairs to your wiring.

3. Deal only with a capable, experienced electrician. Do not entrust wiring to an inexperienced "handyman" or the safety of the job may be impaired.

4. Never use a penny as a substitute for a fuse. Fuses are current limiting devices, designed to cut off current before damage can result if a short circuit or overload causes wires to overheat. Pennies or fuses that are too large may cause wires to become hot enough to ignite insulation, possibly causing a fire. The right size fuse for most household branch circuits is 15 amperes.

5. Use only appliance cords bearing label of Underwriters Laboratory, which signifies compliance with rigid safety standards. Do not drive nails or tacks through cords, place them under rugs or in contact with radiators or other heat sources.

6. Use only asbestos covered cords with heating appliances.

7. Always disconnect an iron (especially a non automatic) if you leave it standing on ironing board while you answer the phone or doorbell.

8. Never put away an iron or other heating appliance until cool.

Gas Goes Boom in Ohio, Exploding Profits for Everybody in Canton

There's something for nearly everybody in Canton's natural gas boom—"but it makes me mad when people ask how it feels to be a millionaire," says Mrs. Frank Piechowski. Here she and her son Frank, Jr., contemplate the gas well rig in their back yard while pop helps the drilling crew. "We're getting free gas and, if we're lucky, maybe $25 a month," she says

By Mrianne Pachner
NEA Staff Correspondent

CANTON, Ohio—(NEA)—Lawyers and bankers, mill workers and lumbermen, industrialists and real estate operators ,a dairyman, a druggist, a policeman, a dogcatcher—in fact, the entire population of this town has a stake in the new natural gas boom that's roaring here.

More wells are being drilled than have been drilled in a like area in Ohio for the past hundred years. But nobody expects to get rich quick.

There are just too many "pardners."

For instance, Nick Di Simone, the county dog warden, was first reported to have cleared a neat $6,000 as his royalty on a well brought in on his property.

"One sixteenth of $6,000 is more like it," says Nick. "I have to share returns with 15 other property owners. But even if it isn't big money, it sure helps out."

The well drilling really amounts to a community project. On the theory that a gas well draws from at least 40 surrounding acres, conscieutious promoters endeavor to sign up everybody whose property comes within that boundary, even though government restrictions are off.

400 On One Lease

Since most of the wells are within the city limits, some of the leases carry up to 400 names.

"Only one in a hundred will really make a handsome profit," says Marshall Belden, who is the largest private driller. "The first wells brought in were exceptional, producing about two million cubic feet. Wells like this mean about $80,000 over a period of 10 to 15 years, if they hold out, and the lessee is entitled to one-eighth royalty on the profit. However, when you subtract $25,000, which is the cost of the drilling, and then divide one-eighth of the remainder among all these people, you can see for yourself what it amounts to."

The strike is a good one. More than 130 wells, only two of which were dry holes, have been drilled in little over a year. At the present rate of drilling, the field will have been completely exploited in another six months.

Greatest benefit to this steel and manufacturing town will be the abundance of natural gas available the year round. Industrial plants which closed down in winter when gas was shifted to private homes can now remain open, eliminating seasonal unemployment.

The city itself has leased city-owned parks to drillers. Royalties will go into a special park fund, so even those Cantonites who do not own gas-rich land individually are in on the boom.

As many as 2,200 separate areas of metropolitan London were evacuated because of unexploded bombs during the height of the "blitz."

Street lights now can be automatically regulated to provide the required illumination regardless of the weather, by use of an electronic switch.

According to the OWMR figures on chart above, output of electric irons, vacuum cleaners and tires is ahead of the peacetime rate, but automobiles, refrigerators and sewing machines lag behind.

Building activity has more than doubled in the past year, says OWMR, crossing the billion-dollar-per-month line. August, 1946, figures are preliminary.

American Legion Commander 'Buried on Paper'

By Brack Curry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Paul H. Griffith, just elected National Commander of the American Legion, was rolled in an army blanket and left at the side of a French road for burial just 28 years ago this month.

Two of Griffith's buddies actually buried him—on paper. They wrote to their families in Uniontown, Pa.:

"We laid Paul in a nice, quiet spot, where he won't be disturbed by the shells."

Griffith is a husky, healthy 200-pounder now. Here's what happened in the Toul sector of France in World War I:

As a dispatch rider for the 55th infantry brigade headquarters of the 28th division, he was zipping down a road on a motorcycle. A shell exploded nearby, and he was catapulted into a shell hole. A shell fragment peeled his scalp down over his face.

Found by Doughboys

The two doughboys found him there.

"I woke up in a stable with two French doctors working over me," Griffith recalled in an exclusive interview just before he left for the San Francisco convention which elected him commander Friday.

With 68 stitches the doctors sewed his scalp back in place. One remarked to the other: "Well, that's all we can do. Maybe he'll live if he tries hard enough."

There was a girl Griffith wanted to marry back in Uniontown. And his folks were waiting.

So he tried hard—and since then has made a name for himself in business, the Legion, fraternal and civic affairs and a second world war.

Now 49, Griffith stands 5 feet 10, sports an infectious smile, talks briskly with a nice baritone voice and gestures freely.

He has black hair which has slipped back a little and a tawny complexion. He prefers grey double-breasted suits. He's a republican, a Mason, a Shriner and a member of the National City Christian church of Washington.

No Stuffed Shirt

He doesn't drink or smoke, but a friend says: "He's no stuffed shirt."

Griffith's friends swear by him. One of his intimates says:

"Four words sum up Paul Griffith—serious, steady, loyal, determined."

Since World War I the Legion has been Griffith's hobby, his only one.

One of his main tenets for the Legion is nonpartisanship in politics. He says it should "devote itself to a positive program of Americanism."

In our interview he emphasized this:

"We must let the youth of America know why this great nation is different from Nazism and communism. Let's show them and the people generally why we supplied most of the materials for the war and why we now are providing most of the food for the world.

Born in Mining Town

"Most people know America is the greatest country in the world—but they don't know why. The Legion should provide the answer."

He says: "We should have a national defense setup so strong that no one would dare attack us."

Born in Uniontown, a coal mining town, in 1897, Griffith as a youth lugged milk, butter and cheese from his father's wholesale dairy products business around to stores.

When the United States entered the war in 1917, he left high school to enlist—and never returned to school. He served as a sergeant. Although he became a Colonel in World War II, friends say Griffith still retains the enlisted man's point of view.

He emerged from his first war with the silver star, purple heart, Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre.

After the war Griffith came back home to help his father run his dairy business. In 1920 he married Miss Pearl Jennewine, of Ft. Marion, Pa. They have two children—Paul, Jr., and Mrs. Nancy Lee Sweene, of Washington.

Headed State Department

In 1928 Griffith was Commander of Lafayette Post No. 51 at Uniontown. During 1932-33 he was commander of the Pennsylvania department.

He became chairman of the Legion's National Americanism commission in 1934, and was director of the National Employment and Veterans Preference committee from 1937 to 1944. From 1935 to 1940 he was director of the Washington branch office of the Legion's national headquarters.

Ordered to duty as a major in June, 1940, Griffith served for more than two years as assistant executive to former Undersecretaries of War Louis Johnson and Robert P. Patterson. In 1942 he was named military member of the American technical mission to India.

Griffith was in Burma in 1942. With a small group of officers he drove into an airfield at Lashio, expecting to find Chinese troops.

Nobody was there. But in the distance they heard Banzai yells.

Asked what he did then, Griffith replied: "I didn't tarry."

To Middle East

When Johnson was sent to the Middle East as the personal representative of the President, Griffith became his military aide.

In Iran, Griffith says, "I got the impression that the Russians want the world with a fence around it for themselves.

"They were damn greedy. We were lend-leasing them planes and trucks and all kinds of war materials. And when we rolled out a plane with a slight flaw or insufficient spare parts, the Russians would refuse to take it."

When Griffith returned home, he was appointed an assistant executive in the office of Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director. He helped draw up the lists of essential activities and critical occupations for selective service and for the war manpower commission.

Colonel in 1944

On January 27, 1944, he was promoted to Colonel and named by Hershey as chief of the Veterans personnel division, organized to help veterans regain their old jobs or to find new ones. Later he became assistant administrator in charge of retraining and reemployment of the war mobilization and reconversion office.

Griffith was relieved from army duty when Japan surrendered. He became executive vice president of the Conlon Electric Corporation of Brooklyn, Baltimore and Washington, a marine electrical engineering firm.

He also runs his own public relations firm here, representing clients in the engineering and electronics and other fields.
